

ABSTRACT

Further, a system is provided for dissipating heat from a semiconductor module including a semiconductor die and the unitary heat sink. The heat sink comprising a unitary body having both a porous and non-porous portion is provided. The non-porous portion is attached to the semiconductor die and configured to transfer heat to the porous portion for dissipation into the environment. In addition, a method for manufacturing the heat sink is provided.